About the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention

Established in 1987, the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP) is a voluntary health organization that gives those affected by suicide a nationwide community empowered by research, education and advocacy to take action against this leading cause of death.

This year, the AFSP has launched a campaign called “Talk Away the Dark” to help save lives through brave conversations about suicide. The campaign shows the impact of simple, direct dialogue about suicide and how to initiate those conversations when they are more important than ever.

Dear Public Service Director,

Suicide affects so many of us. In the U.S. it's the 11th leading cause of death. And, in 2021 the number who died increased 4.79% with 48,183 dying by suicide and 1.7 people attempted suicide, according to recent CDC reports.

That's why the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP) has launched a powerful new campaign called "Talk Away the Dark" to prompt direct conversations about mental health and suicide to help save lives. Research shows that suicide is preventable and the more we openly, honestly, and directly talk about suicide, the more we can help to prevent it. When we can recognize the warning signs of someone struggling, know the risk factors for suicide, and bravely start an open and honest conversation with someone we care about, we can take the first steps to preventing suicide.

We hope your station can join us in helping to shift the cultural narrative around mental health and suicide prevention by airing the new PSA campaign titled "Talk Away the Dark" (:60. :30). The PSA depicts a daughter having brave conversations with her father as she recognizes in him common warning signs of mental health struggles. The PSA ends with the daughter asking her father directly about suicide, bringing him back from the shadows and into the light. While very timely for use during National Suicide Prevention Month in September, this PSA has no end date for use. We hope you can share this important message with your viewers by airing this PSA as soon and as often as possible.

The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention is dedicated to saving lives and bringing hope to those affected by suicide. AFSP creates a culture that's smart about mental health through public education and community programs, develops suicide prevention through research and advocacy, and provides support for those affected by suicide. Thank you in advance for your support of this public service message.

Sincerely,

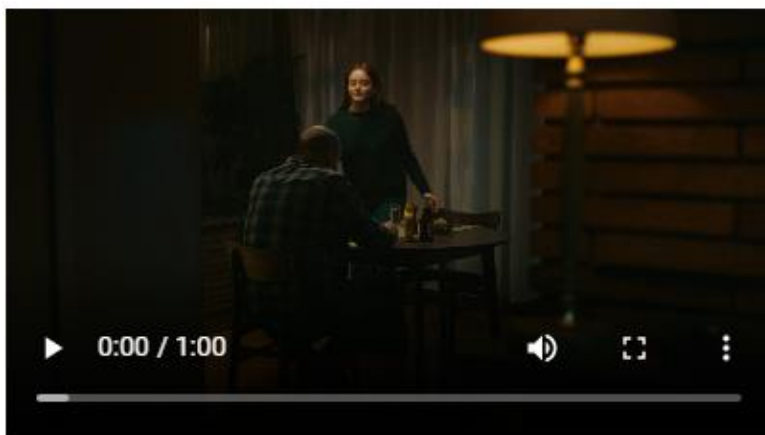

Robert Gebbia,
AFSP CEO

Talk Away the Dark

While we have made great strides as a society in talking about mental health, people are often still hesitant to talk directly about suicide. All too often it goes unaddressed, even when we may sense someone is struggling. The “Talk Away the Dark” campaign shows the impact of simple, direct dialogue about suicide and how to initiate those conversations when they are more important than ever.

To learn more, please watch our new PSA below titled "Talk Away the Dark" (:60) which is also available in a :30 length. We ask that you please air this PSA, which has no end date for use as soon and as often as possible.
